

TEAT CUP ASSEMBLY

Abstract

A teat cup assembly comprises an inflation having a plurality of radially-extending longitudinal ribs circumferentially spaced about the inflation and having a T-shaped cross-section. An outer shell for receiving the inflation comprises a plurality of longitudinally-extending slots having a T-shaped cross-section adapted for slidable communication with the ribs